Great Ideas from America's Lumberyards

Building material suppliers have to spend so much time concentrating on local concerns that it's tough for you to learn about trends and ideas from other parts of the country that could help you survive and even thrive in today's market. Craig Webb will share some of the most innovative ideas from around the country, the most significant trends in our industry and what Ohio dealers could face in the future.

About Craig Webb: Craig Webb is Editor of ProSales magazine, the No. 1 publication serving lumber and building material dealers and distributors. Since joining ProSales in September 2006, he has crisscrossed the U.S., meeting dealers and distributors to learn about their operations. That legwork has provided much of the information that he uses in his articles as well as in presentations to groups around the country.
